Voyant Solutions and Cyrus Technologies Introduce XtraVision™ a CyrusPowered™ product

Now you're really in control!

INDIANAPOLIS, IN - Voyant Solutions in partnership with Cyrus Technologies is excited to announce the building automation industry's premier Web Services based user interface that has adopted and complies with the new oBIX (Open Building Information) standard. oBIX is an industry-wide initiative to define XML- and Web services-based mechanisms for building control systems. Voyant, in an ongoing effort to provide technologies and solutions that support "Flexible, Cost-Effective Building Automation and IT Integration" is pleased to announce Voyant XtraVision™ a CyrusPowered™ product.

"Enabling customers to get building information to the enterprise level is a critical step in ensuring Building IT Convergence", explains Voyant Solutions President, Jeff Bredeson. "This product is that enabling technology and fills that existing gap in the building automation architecture."

Voyant XtraVision is a revolutionary technology exclusively available through Voyant Solutions and the Voyant Solutions Integrator Network (VSIN).

"Our passion is to build on our award winning platform and provide the best and most innovative web based products for this industry." Stated Matt Horton, Vice President of Technology for CyrusPowered Products. "Voyant thoroughly understands the direction this industry is heading and how technologies like ours can help deliver world class solutions this market demands."

Voyant XtraVision can be provided in two forms, XtraVision Online and XtraVision Enterprise. XtraVision Online offers building owners and operators a state of the art Operator Interface while avoiding all of problems associated with owning, operating and supporting application/server based systems. XtraVision Enterprise is for large organizations that want the benefits of XtraVision installed directly on their IT system.

"This product is the future of Building Automation," adds Sean Kennedy, CEO of Voyant. "We believe it is time online services like those provided by Salesforce.com™ and others are applied to our industry."
